ON behalf of the Foxy Ladies group, I welcome you to our 7th annual female production sale in West Point, NE. Last year's females produced some great calves in the show ring both near and far. Still others set the scales down in your local sale barn. At the risk of sounding like a broken record, I honestly believe this the strongest and most consistent group of females from the top to the bottom.

The consigners' aim has been to improve our genetics every year, so whether or not they produce a fancy show heifer or raise a great herd bull or sell more pounds at the local sale barn. We are offering once again some elite show heifers that will compete at any level whether its at your local county fair or if you want to show at the American Simmental Junior Association national show this summer in Grand Inland, NE in early July.

No flowery words are used in the catalog footnotes, so study the catalog and the females and they will speak for themselves. Come join us at the West Point Livestock Market for an evening of watching Foxy Ladies females as a potential buyer or just to join us for a meal and some social entertainment the Saturday after Thanksgiving. We will try to roll out the red carpet for you.

OWNED BY FELT FARMS

I could sit here and write pages on how good this one really is, but we all know what it's like to have write footnotes on all of these females. I was in Idaho a few years ago looking at buy Simmental heifers from Bob Lanting and my buddy told me we needed to go look at some Angus in Oregon from one of his good friends. I was a little reluctant to go and kill another day but boy I am glad we went. I ended up buying a small package of cows from him and they have done an amazing job for me. Study this one's picture and tell me how you could make one much better, she is definitely a sale highlight and one of my favorites.

OWNED BY FELT FARMS

I happen to own this one's dam with my neighbor and in order to keep things from getting too complicated, it's easier to cash in than worrying about splitting calves and what not down the road. That's the only reason why I am letting her leave the place. She goes back to my lead off heifer in my champion pen of heifers in Denver a few years ago and has turned out to be one of the best cows and picture perfect cows on the place. Bankroll is hot and I can see why. This one is as stout of one that I have found, plus is both eye appealing and just built awesome. I'm sure this will be a donor cow down the road for the new lucky owner.

The best part of the cattle business is that not everyone has the same taste in how they like them; otherwise it would be tough to sell more than one kind. This is probably my personal favorite lot this year and maybe one of my all-time favorites I have sold. It's females like this that has made me money through the years. They can be bred to raise bulls or show heifers and they're always going to have something great no matter what. When they are this stout and big middle, plus still give you this kind of look, they are front pasture kind that everyone talks about. One of my new favorite quotes applies to this lot, "even Ray Charles could find this one."

Lots 4-8 are flush sisters. This cow family needs no introduction to our place or to the Ruby operation in Iowa. This cow produced my class winning pen of bulls last year in Denver and the lead off bull (Perseverance) is going to get promoted this fall and winter by the Behmer family. No matter how we have bred this cow or flushed this cow, they have all been good. No matter what. No, there hasn't been one freak out of the flush that brought a lot of money nor the rest junk like many show heifers are today. They consistently have all been good and sold well. Mom and dad are starting to get the age they want to slow down some, so that's probably the only reason mom is letting me sell some of these. I have my favorite one picked out but I don't know if it's the right one.

Jock and Brenda have been great friends of mine through the years and we own a few cows together. They called me a few years ago when they were at the North Dakota State sale and they found a red baldy female that was awesome and wanted to know if I would partner with them. I have learned through the years when they say they have found a good one, I just tell them to buy her and will figure out how to pay for them later. That purchase ended up being a no brainer and has generated a lot of money for them and me, as well. When I look for a donor or breeding piece I want something that is consistent and a breed changer. Her first natural calf won his division at Denver and now roams the farm for Kip Julson in South Dakota. I'm not going to lie to you, this fall calf hasn't had much tender love and has been pretty much neglected. We don't really have any fall calves and they are always in the way but I always knew she had the parts and pieces to be great. Finally, she's been given her a chance to come around and notice her choked necked, nice chest and stout build. This one needs to be shown and become a donor cow. Whatever this one sells for, I am certain she will be cheap. Her sire is a great Broker son that we showed and was calf champion at the Iowa and Nebraska State Fairs.

A half-brother was champion low percentage bull at Iowa and Nebraska State fairs a few years ago and went on to be my top selling bull, selling to Chris Ford and Jason Voss of South Dakota. This has been a pasture favorite by many that have been here and I think she will be easy to find sale day. Buy with confidence as there is a lot of predictability built into this one's future.

My dad has always been a sucker for a baldy heifer to make cows and always tells me someday when he disperses his cow herd that all of them are going to be baldies. We all know that won't happen unless something happens to my mother first. He bought this one's dam from Western Cattle Source and she has been a cash cow for him. One of our top selling bulls in the bull sale the last few years has come out of this one's dam. This calf is sired by the Son of the Biscuit bull that was Western Cattle Sources pick from the Werning's sale a few years back. ### OWNED BY FELT FARMS

This was Meant to Be's first breeding season and I think when mated right the resulting progeny are going to be great cattle. Every calf out of this one's mother are always later maturing and always come on strong about this time in their life. I never like to give my hired man much credit but this has been one of his favorites. I'm not going to disagree with him, she is going to be good.

FELT GERTI 101G

sire. HILB/JASS TOP IT OFF dam. FELT JAYCEE 101D
dob. 4/10/19 3/4 SM 1/4 AN reg# 3623673

OWNED BY FELT FARMS

This one's dam was my lead off heifer in my champion pen of heifers a couple years back in Denver. If someone would ask me what a perfect cow would look like, I would tell you to come take a look at this one's momma. She is perfect uddered and stout, easy fleshing and really feminine in her design. This one has all of the parts and pieces and I have told many this is one of my favorite calves in the sale.

Lots 97& 99 came out of my 454 donor cow, which you can read about elsewhere in the catalog. These are legit young heifers and they just needed a little time to shine. They are both perfect in their structure and made extremely well with balance. Last year my top sellers were full sisters to these two. Buy with confidence here, then show them and make donors out of them when you're done.

sire. HILB/JASS TOP IT OFF dam. DSUL SEZA TANK C35
dob. 4/20/19 1/2 SM1/4CA1/4MA reg# 3623669

Here is a unique breeding piece; she can be dual registered as a halfblood Simmie or a high Chi as well. Every once in a while my inner club calf addiction comes out and I buy a female like her dam for fun. Her dam came from Dan Sullivan; she is a Who Da Man back to his great Heat seeker cow that has raised many champions for him. Anyone that has been around the Who Da Man genetics knows they're a little bit later maturing and end up being some of the best cattle by fall. This one gets better every day and she as all the right pieces to be great someday.

There is always that one that you wish could have been born first and towards the end of calving. Every year I group up the last of the recip cows and put a group of eggs in last. I try to keep their calves for replacement heifers for myself. I felt this one is a rising star and just too good to not offer her to someone to show. She is out of my Remington Lock and Load that is out of Burn Baby Burn cow that was the top seller in Louisville a few years back. I never used Bush's Unbelievable much but boy did it work here. This one is perfect on her feet and legs and awesome in her build. I'm sure this one as a bred will be a force to be reckoned with and kind of really kicking myself--because I like buying the diamond in the rough, not selling them.

We think this purebred Angus heifer is an attractive profiling heifer with a huge middle! This one has all the parts to be an excellent breeding piece! She is also broke and ready for Jr showman!
